

DAVID BLACKBURN,
CONSTRUCTION IMAGING &
ARCHIVING

Construction Imaging & Archiving (CIA)

Was established by President David Blackburn to address the widespread pandemic of construction defect litigation. By systematically documenting construction project using its specialized hardware, state-of-the-art software, and specially trained personnel, CIA aims to greatly improve construction quality while reducing exposure to costly lawsuits. CIA photography documents construction project on a daily, weekly, monthly, or as needed basis and uploads the photographs in real time to a secured project web site for its clients and other interest parties, which may include project owners, developers, subcontractors, lenders, insurance agencies, and fund control agents. CIA's revolutionary systems allows viewing of jobsite conditions 24 hours a day, seven days a week, from anywhere that has Internet access at a cost-effective price. To learn more, visit www.constructionarchiving.com.